

Essential Guide to Ortisei, Val Gardena, Italy: Best Base in the Dolomites for First Time Visitors

Blog > Europe > Italy > Dolomites

Ortisei (St. Ulrich in German, Urtijëi in Ladin) is a village in Val Gardena in South Tyrol, Italy.

With its advantageous location and charming pedestrian center, Ortisei is one of the most popular destinations in the Dolomites for a summer or winter holiday.

It's the largest and liveliest village in Val Gardena, boasting a wide array of hotels, bars, shops, and restaurants.

The village is surrounded by scenic high plateaus and iconic mountains like Alpe di Siusi (Seiser Alm), Seceda, and the Resciesa Plateau (Raschötz), which are all accessible by cableways, or funiculars.

One of the most compelling reasons to stay in Ortisei is that you don't need a car. Bus transit is free for all Ortisei overnight guests, who are staying in accommodations that are members of the Tourist Association. That's most accommodations in Ortisei excluding some apartments and all AirBnBs.

Compared to other destinations in the Dolomites, Ortisei's summer season is very long. It begins as early as end of May and ends as late as early November. So, if you're visiting the Dolomites during shoulder season, Ortisei is a great base.

In our guide to visiting Ortisei, you'll find out when to visit, what to see and do, where to stay, and suggested day trips.

When to Visit Ortisei, Val Gardena

Visit Ortisei between June and October for hiking and between mid-December and March for skiing.

Winter Season

Ortisei is first and foremost a ski resort town. The ski season usually begins in early December and ends in early April. Visitors come to Ortisei in winter to ski in the Val Gardena – Alpe di Siusi ski area.

The Val Gardena ski resort is also part of Dolomiti Superski, a network of 12 ski areas across the Dolomites, which when combined, form the largest ski resort in the world. You can access all 12 ski areas using a single Dolomiti Superski ski pass.

Tip | If you want to ski the Sella Ronda ski circuit from Ortisei, ride the cableways to Seceda and then ski down to the Col Raiser valley station. Hop on the Gardena Ronda Express underground railway to reach the Saslong valley station. Navigate to Ciampinoi and then ski down to Plan de Gralba to start the green route.

If visiting Ortisei in December during the holidays, enjoy mulled wine in the village center Christmas Market, open from early December until early January.

Depending on snow conditions, the Ortisei summer season kicks off sometime between late May and early June and doesn't end until late, or end of October. Most cableways will operate at least until mid/late October. Some will even stay open until early November.

We've visited Ortisei in August, September, and October. We think September and October are the best months to visit Ortisei because it's less crowded and most facilities are still operating. Learn more about hiking in Ortisei in Fall:

1. Seceda Ridgeline

Seceda is a mountain in the Odle/Geisler Group. The summit of Seceda (2518 meters) is a popular destination in the Dolomites, because of its sensational vantage point of the jagged Fermeda Peaks.

Atop Seceda, these peaks look like daggers, piercing the sky. It's one of the most thrilling places to visit in Ortisei.

When to Visit Seceda

Skiers can ski on the Seceda Alp between mid/late December and end of March/early April.

How to Get to Seceda

Head to the Seceda cableway valley station in Ortisei.

Address | Via Val d'Anna 2, I-39046 Ortisei in Val Gardena, South Tyrol, Italy |
Google Maps

If you're in the village center, take the La Curta pedestrian walkway and tunnel to the valley station. We've described this short-cut in our Seceda

Seceda (2500 m).

From the Seceda mountain station, it's a mere 10-minute walk to the summit lookout point.

For continuously impressive views, follow the Seceda ridgeline and walk across the Seceda meadows to the Furcella de Pana/Panascharte notch.

Seceda Hiking Trails

The gorgeous Seceda Alp is also a great place to start hikes in Puez-Odle Nature Park.

We recommend hiking to the Pieralongia alpine pasture and Rifugio Firenze/Regensburger Hütte. This circuit hike takes 3:00 – 3:30 hours and is 8.9 km long.

Learn More: Seceda to Regensburger Hütte Circuit Trail

2. Alpe di Siusi Meadows

Alpe di Siusi (Seiser Alm in German, Mont Sëuc in Ladin) is the largest high alpine pasture in Europe.

The expansive meadowscape of Seiser Alm romances visitors with its perfect green (or snow-covered) pastures, idyllic hay huts, and striking mountains.

Visiting Alpe di Siusi is usually a priority for most first time visitors to the Dolomites, who are determined to see the spellbinding beauty of Sassolungo, Sasso Piatto, and the Sciliar massif jutting out of a sea of rolling meadows.

In summer, Alpe di Siusi is brimming with hikers and mountain-bikers. In winter, the plateau is a popular downhill skiing/snowboarding as well as cross-country skiing destination with 80 km of cross-country tracks.

From Ortisei, reaching the plateau is effortless, requiring only a single gondola ride.

In summer, the Mont Sëuc Gondola is usually operating from late May until late October/early November. Check funiviaortisei.eu for opening times and prices.

In winter, the gondola is part of the Val Gardena ski resort and is usually operating from early December until early April, along with the other cableways in the region.

How to Get to Alpe di Siusi

Head to the Ortisei-Alpe di Siusi Ropeway (aka Mont Sëuc Gondola) valley station. If you're in the Ortisei village center, you can walk to the valley station via a pedestrian bridge (2 minutes). If you're arriving by car, there's a paid parking garage at the valley station, with a capacity of 240 parking spaces.

Ascend to Alpe di Siusi with the Ortisei-Alpe di Siusi gondola.

When you disembark the gondola, head left, and descend along trail 9 in the direction of Saltria. After about 10 minutes, you'll arrive at the Schgaguler Schwaige alpine pasture hut/restaurant.

From here, you can continue towards Saltria along trail 9 (50 minutes), or walk to Compaccio/Compatsch, the largest settlement on Alpe di Siusi.

Another option is to hike all the way to Monte Pana and Santa Cristina.

Learn More: How to Visit Alpe di Siusi

Alpe di Siusi Hiking Trails

While staying in Ortisei, it makes the most sense to access the Seiser Alm plateau via the Mont Sëuc Gondola.

However, there are a number of interesting Alpe di Siusi hikes which start in Compaccio/Compatsch, accessible by bus or cableway from the village of Siusi allo Sciliar/Seis am Schlern.

It's a 20-minute drive from Ortisei to the Seiser Alm Aerial Cableway valley station in Siusi/Seis.

From Compaccio/Compatsch, you can hike to Rifugio Alpe di Tires, a lovely refuge planted on the Passo Alpe di Tires/Tierser Alpljoch mountain pass, between the Sciliar/Schlern Group and the Rosengarten/Catinaccio Group.

We highly recommend hiking this Rifugio Bolzano to Rifugio Alpe di Tires Circuit, a grand loop trail which ascends to the Sciliar plateau and then leads to Rifugio Alpe di Tires and then over the Forcella Denti di Terrarossa/Rosszahn scharte saddle back to Alpe di Siuis.

Resciesa/Raschötz is a high plateau characterized by wide meadows and pockets of stone pine and larch forest.

Rising above Val Gardena to the south and Val di Funes to the north, the Resciesa Alp grants visitors far-reaching views of the surrounding mountains and valleys. Like Alpe di Siusi, Resciesa is a great place for unhurried walking and hiking with children.

In winter, Resciesa is famous for its tobogganing slope.

How to Get to Resciesa

Take this funicular up to the plateau. It's that easy.

When to Visit Resciesa

Time your visit to Resciesa with the operating times of the funicular, which you can find here.

Resciesa Hiking Trails

We love Resciesa, because it's a great place to start hikes to Val di Funes, Seceda, and Val d'Anna. Here are a few ideas. All trails are marked in the interactive Ortisei map.

Resciesa Plateau Circuit (Easy)

If you're seeking a low-impact, easy hike atop Resciesa Alp, exit the funicular and follow signs to Raschötzhütte along trail 35A (30 minutes). Follow a stone pathway for five minutes and then at the intersection turn left. You'll see Sella, Sassolungo, Catinaccio, Sciliar, the Eisacktal valley, as well as the Italian and Austrian Alps in the distance.

From here, continue on trail 10 in the direction of Locia da Fitz/Flitzer Scharte. Following the ridge of the plateau, continue onto trail 31. Trail 10 cuts directly across the plateau to Raschötzhütte.

To complete the loop, you can follow 31 until you reach the intersection with trail 35. If your hike was sufficient, you can head back to the funicular mountain station.

If you want to keep walking, follow trail 35 for as long as you want, towards the ever-present Odle Peaks. It's a gorgeous trail that leads to Passo di Brogles/Brogles Sattel.

Resciesa to Malga Brogles and Seceda (Difficult)

One of the best hikes in Ortisei is hiking across the Resciesa plateau to Malga Brogles. From this mountain pasture hut, you can ascend to Seceda via the Mittagscharte saddle.

Note: In the past, it was possible to ascend to Seceda via the Panascharte saddle. However, the Panascharte trail is still closed due to a rockfall.

Learn More: Resciesa to Seceda Day Hike

~~Another route you can do is follow trail 5 to Malga Brogles (like the one above).~~ Instead of tackling the difficult ascent to Seceda, you can follow trail 5, which starts at the Passo di Brogles/Brogles Sattel just above Malga Brogles, and hike down to the Furnes cableway middle station. From here, either continue hiking down the valley all the way to Ortisei or take the cableway back down.

From Furnes, we continued to Balest and to the S. Giacomo/St. Jacob church. This hike was a tad too long, especially because we first circuited the plateau, before heading to the Brogles saddle. But, it's also an option.

4. San Giacomo's Church

St. Jacob's Church in English, Chiesa di San Giacomo in Italian, Dlieja da Sacun in Ladin

The Church of San Giacomo is located in a small clearing surrounded by forest, just above the hamlet of San Giacomo, east of Ortisei. It's the oldest church in Val Gardena, possibly dating back to 1181. Facing Sassolungo, this stone chapel encircled by a wall is a lovely place for a picnic or a short-walk from Ortisei.

Here's a description of the hike from Ortisei to St. Jacob's Church. Note: the hike involves a 423 meter ascent and takes 2:10 hours roundtrip.

Alternatively, you can take the bus, or drive to the hamlet of San Giacomo and then walk to the church (15 minutes).

If you want to visit the interior, you can do so on a guided tour between July and mid-September.

Luis Trenker Promenade is a pedestrian walkway in Ortisei named after the famous local actor, director and mountaineer Luis Trenker.

It's a nice place to walk and enjoy the views of the valley.

You can walk along the promenade in the direction of Santa Cristina, and then hike up to St. Jacob's Church.

---

6. Climb Sass Rigais

Sass Rigais (3025 m) along with Furcheta (3025 m) is the highest peak in the Puez-Odle Group. To reach the peak, hikers must tackle a Grade B/C via ferrata route.

Though it's more common to start the Sass Rigais approach from Col Raiser mountain station, we started at Seceda, since we were staying in Casa al Sole in Ortisei.

From start to finish, this demanding route took us 7:30 hours.

Read our Via Ferrata Sass Rigais guide for a comprehensive overview of the different ascent routes (eastern, southwestern, and Val di Funes entrance), difficulty, and equipment.

Where to Eat in Ortisei: Top Restaurants

Tubladel is a gourmet restaurant in Ortisei with a rustic, woody interior, offset by linen-draped tables. The cuisine centers around local, high-quality ingredients, especially game. Waiters present the daily specials on a chalkboard menu. On the two occasions that we've eaten here, the courses were served in an elegantly slow fashion, though perhaps too elegant when you're very hungry.

Don't miss the stuffed courgette flower appetizer and creamy coffee sorbet dessert. All in all, Tubladel offers a very lovely, unhurried dining experience.

Turonda

Turonda is a buzzing pizzeria in Ortisei, run by a motivated team. The menu card is long and somewhat bizarre, featuring Asian-fusion tapas, pizzas, and a flamboyant cocktail menu.

Despite the restaurant's identity-crisis, you will not be disappointed by anything on the menu. We ate here twice, once opting for tapas and

Sabrina Brett

Hello! I'm a spirited traveler on a quest to hike in the most picturesque alpine and coastal destinations across Europe. In 2016, I left my home and job in San Francisco, California, to move to Germany, and later Austria. The following year, I created this blog to help like-minded travelers experience new and exciting ways to travel authentically. I travel to hike, and I hope to inspire your next adventure.

Your posts are so helpful – thank you! My partner and I are planning 6 days in the Dolomites, with a few big day hikes and maybe one overnight at a hut. Ideally, we could stay in two regions to see more of the Dolomites. We could rent a car but would be happier without. Where would you recommend we stay?

I love your guides, they have been so helpful in planning
I will be in the Dolomites this September without a car but would like to spend time in both Cortina de Ampezzo and Val Gardena.
Due to time constraints, I am keen to know if there is an alternative and quicker option to taking the bus and train that doesn't require an expensive private driver.
Many thanks

Thank you for reading!

I'd like to thank you very much for these guides. I was wondering – do you think 7 days is too long in Ortisei? We are making our first trip to the Dolomites to do some easy hiking this September and are likely going to go without a car. We are thinking either of 7 nights in Ortisei, or possibly 4 in Ortisei and 3 in Cortina. We really just want to hike locally within the bus system and eat well. Thank you again for these guides – they are an invaluable resource!

Reply

Hi Shu,

It depends. If you plan on hiking more difficult trails like Piz Duleda, Val de Chedul, and Resciesa-Seceda, and even a few via ferratas, then you have so many hiking options in Val Gardena. I outlined a 7-day Ortisei itinerary in our Casa al Sole review. If, however, you're mostly embarking on mostly easy-moderate hikes, then I'd probably spend 4 days in Ortisei and 3 days in Alta Badia.

All the best,
